Franzen-Hill wins south Texas CNG fast-filling point installation contracts.

Franzen-Hill is excited to partner with Love's Travel Stops as they continue their investment in the expansion of our nation's over the road alternative fuel infrastructure. "We believe Love's commitment to help bring CNG out of the public sector will ultimately change the landscape for traditional fueling contractors. While wet fuels will continue to remain a substantial part of our business model, our continued investment in CNG could not come at a more opportune time." said Darren Thomas, VP and General Manager. "What is paramount in this effort is the commitment our firm has made to the separation of our CNG business from our traditional wet fuels division. While there will be collaboration on the IT and point of sale (POS) sides of the installations, the technical and project management groups will operate independently." said Amanda Thomas, President.

Program Manager Bryan Carr will be responsible for the expansion of the CNG Division including sales, marketing, and general oversight. Together, with Franzen-Hill's team of CNG technicians, he will play an intimate role in each installation as well as the development of the long term national CNG Service and Construction business model at the firm.

Franzen-Hill's suite of CNG services include consulting, construction, installation, service, 3rd party inspections, 36K mile NGV cylinder inspections and calibration. "We believe that our ability to offer a complete menu of fueling solutions to our current customers not only strengthens our partnership but creates a competitive advantage for us. There has traditionally been very little integration of wet fuels and CNG so our ability to provide that service will put us ahead of the market" said Stan Spofford Sales, Corporate Accounts.
